

CALL FOR FELLOWS

Fellowship Programme

Ahaki is currently implementing a programme on Litigating Reproductive Justice in Africa. This Programme aims to create an environment where Africa embraces reproductive justice through progressive, evidence-based and collaborative litigation for access to SRHR.

The programme particularly targets building the capacities of African individuals through our renowned fellowship programme. This round of call for fellows will commence in September 2023 and it is a full-time in-person engagement for a period of 6-12 months at Ahaki.

The fellowship is designed to support Ahaki's programmes and provide opportunities for career development in research, litigation and capacity enhancement in reproductive justice. Ahaki therefore encourages researchers, scholars, litigants, activists, and practitioners from across Africa, who are passionate about SRHR and reproductive justice to apply for the fellowship programme.

The complete application documents MUST be submitted in English to: info@afyanahaki.org

Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted.

Deadline to Apply
July 25th, 2023

Personal specifications

The candidate must have at least a master's degree in the following disciplines: law, public health, social sciences, Gender studies, human rights, or any other discipline relevant to SRHR. The candidate should have experience in research, litigation and capacity enhancement in the area of SRHR. Working experience in project management and implementation will be an added advantage. Applicants MUST be able to express themselves fluently in both French and English.

Application Criteria

Interested candidates in the fellowship programme are expected to provide the following documentation:

- > Detailed resume.
- > Motivation letter stating the reasons why the candidate is interested in the fellowship.
- > The names and contact information of three reference persons.
- > Copies of academic documents.
- > Identification documents including a valid passport and/or a national identity card.
- > A reference letter from at least one reference person.

About Afya na Haki (Ahaki)

Afya na Haki Institute is an African research and training institution that advances health, human rights and Sexual Reproductive Health and Rights (SRHR). In advancing this cause, we envision a society which harnesses and amplifies Africa's potential in realizing health, human rights and SRHR.

This is realized through facilitating Africentric learning and innovation. We aim to co-create and front African solutions to African problems by engaging Africans in health, human rights and SRHR issues. We believe in Africentrism which we front under four pillars: a) telling positive African narratives; b) engaging the African regional and sub-regional institutions; c) supporting and collaborating with African NGOs and other organisations; and lastly engaging African experts and individuals.

> See: www.afyanahaki.org